Sturgeon M.D. Council Declines Offer To Rejoin District Planning Commission

EDMONTON—At the September 11th meeting of the Council of the Municipal District of Sturgeon, a delegation requested Council to rejoin the Edmonton District Planning Commission. The matter was discussed at some length and it was decided that at present Sturgeon would not rejoin.

The delegation which met with Council on this subject also discussed another matter.

Messrs. Lantz, Soetow, Beque, Epp, and Hennig interviewed Council relative to application they had received for a Steel Processing Plant to be erected S.W. 25-33-24-4, and was the Council in favor or against it or if it was simply neutral and said what the application had been received by this district, and unless we had more information to determine whether the Processing Plant was heavy industry or light, or if it was simply meant for the storage of scrap iron, the Council could not state whether it would be in favor or not. If it was just meant for storage of scrap iron, the Council would not be in favor.

Reeve T. W. Rowswell opened the meeting at 9:30 a.m. with all Councillors present, and on the motion of Councillor P. Laskewich the minutes of the previous meeting were adopted.

The financial statement for August, as submitted, was accepted and ordered filed the motion of Councillor Geo. Carleton.

On the motion of Councillor G. H. Hall permission was granted for the proposed Memorial Gardens to The Memorial Gardens Association.

Lease Lands

Mrs. Middleton interviewed Council to discuss report that they were leaving the farm without harvesting the crop on lands leased from the Municipality. She informed Council that Mr. Middleton had gone off work except past to have work for 5 years, but that she would not be leaving until the crop was harvested. They would like to retain N.E. 36-59-24-4 and N.W. 31-59-23-4 with a view to purchasing the land from memory released while Mr. Middleton was out working. Mrs. Middleton was assured that the question of sale would be given consideration and also lease to her husband and the other tenant from the farm and that the Municipality would stand by the present lease with Mr. Middleton so long as the conditions of the lease were fulfilled.

Council adjourned for lunch at 12:45 on the motion of Councillor Carleton. Reeve Rowswell reconvened the meeting as a Court of Revision at 2 p.m.

Soucy, Poupert To Stand Trial Oct. 1

For the shooting and wound of Rudolph Rufer, Gainford and attempted robbery on June 30, Paul Soucy, 23 and Robert Poupert, 18, will stand trial on Oct. 1. The men appeared before Mr. Justice Egbert in Supreme Court in Edmonton on Monday and each pleaded not guilty and asked for jury trial.

Soucy and Poupert had held up and robbed Paul Klapert of Gainford of ten dollars and a gun and then held up Rufer's garage but when Rufer resisted the men, he was shot in the neck. The men escaped the police and were on the loose for about a week before finally being taken captive.

Rufer, who is partially paralyzed due to the neck wound, was unable to give evidence at the preliminary hearing in police court in July.

Teachers Plan Fall Conventions In All Parts Of Alberta

Seventeen district conventions of Alberta teachers will be held throughout Alberta during the next two months, Eric C. Ansley, general secretary-treasurer of the Alberta Teachers' Association announced. Conventions are being organized by local committees and are being planned in centrally located towns.

In most areas the convention will be attended by teachers from several A.T.A. locals, and prominent educationists from Eastern Canada and Western United States will be guests. Also on the agenda will be representatives from the Alberta Council of Education and the Alberta Teachers' Association, sponsors of the Annual District Conventions.

Three conventions in the Peace River area opened the convention run. Several hundred teachers met at Fairview September 22 and 23; Beaverlodge September 24 and 25 and at Father September 25 and 26.

The following week Two Hills, Bonnyville and one section of Edmonton district teachers will hold their annual meetings. Several A.T.A. locals around each centre will be represented.

During the week of October 4 the Edmonton will play host to a second district convention from Oct. 1. The men appeared before Mr. Justice Egbert in Supreme Court in Edmonton on Monday and each pleaded not guilty and asked for jury trial.

Soucy and Poupert had held up and robbed Paul Klapert of Gainford of ten dollars and a gun and then held up Rufer's garage but when Rufer resisted the men, he was shot in the neck. The men escaped the police and were on the loose for about a week before finally being taken captive.

Rufer, who is partially paralyzed due to the neck wound, was unable to give evidence at the preliminary hearing in police court in July.

Re-Zoning Of "Speed-Way" Subdivision Considered

EDMONTON—At the September meeting of the Edmonton District Planning Commission the proposed re-zoning of a small tract of land at the southern extremity of the city received further consideration and a complete report on this connection was presented by the Technical Staff.

The area involved, known as "Speed-way" subdivision, contains some 87 acres lying immediately south of the existing industrial zone and bounded on the south by 51st Avenue, is presently in the A-zone Greenbelt.

The report showed that the principles underlying the A-zones would not be seriously affected by the proposed re-zoning, and as more ready access would result from such action being taken, the Commission voted to recommend to the Municipality to recommend, namely, the City of Edmonton and the Municipal District of Strathcona, that the proposal be implemented.

In the event of these municipalities agreeing, it is proposed that the Technical Staff co-operate with them in the preparation of an integrated plan covering the land affected.

A request for permission to subdivide a block of land situated in the A-zone Greenbelt and containing some 24 acres was considered by the Commission, and a full report on the situation submitted by the Technical Staff.

It was shown that the request stemmed from a desire to legalize the holding of the owners of three residences located on the block and that the dwellings had, in all likelihood, been there prior to the adoption of zoning under the Outline General Plan and the regulations under which such holdings are limited to a minimum of five acres.

Considerable discussion took place, and finally it was decided that as the request contravened the regulations governing the Greenbelt, with a view to seeing if some amendment to take care of instances such as this, is practicable.

At the request of Mr. G. H. Thompson mayor of the Town of Devon, the Technical Staff were instructed to give such assistance as lay in their power toward the re-siting of a camp which had become established in that town.

Eagles Stalk Antelopes

DEER LODGE, Mont.—While out in a valley Miss Pearce, of Deer Lodge, saw a golden eagle circling in the sky. Suddenly, the bird folded its wings and plunged earthward. A few feet from the ground, the eagle threw out its wings, braking the dive and stabbed its sharp talons into the back of an antelope fawn. Game Warden Les Barton declares the eagles have been killing an average of one fawn a day since June 1st and do not confine their killing to antelope but also kill deer fawns and calf elk.

Traffic Safety

Traffic Safety is an individual problem for each driver. He controls a machine which is capable of destroying the life and property of others and, what is far more personal, it can destroy him too.

City, Provincial and Federal Governments are all in the picture to provide safe highways, to write game laws and to enforce these laws—but, they can't drive for the people. That's an individual problem.

That some drivers can stay out of trouble indefinitely is a matter of record. For example, large bus and truck companies, who keep meticulous accident records, honor a growing number of men each year who have driven a million miles without an accident. A private driver travelling 10,000 miles a year would have to drive 100 years without scratching a fender to equal these men.

Although most of us will never drive a million miles, we drive enough to get into minor trouble fairly often and serious trouble occasionally. For some of the 183 Alberta traffic victims last year, the first serious accident was their last. For others, the end simply climaxed a lifetime of indefinite driving.

We have the word of safety people everywhere that ANY individual can improve his driving habits if he will only realize that he isn't already perfect and then have an honest try at doing better. Defensive driving is a phrase which has come into use to describe the attitude and behavior that keeps some people safe.

A defensive driver sees danger ahead and acts so that the danger never materializes. He sees opportunities to avoid conflict with other people using the road, and acts. He thinks of right-of-way as something to give instead of something to demand. He stays well back of the next vehicle. He never passes unless he is certain he can do so without endangering himself or anyone else. He signals his intended turns and stops and is not above letting pedestrians know that he can wait until they are in the clear. Also, he does not jump the green light.

The defensive driver is a gentleman but can still reach any given destination just about as quickly as anyone else.

He has licked his personal traffic problems and so can all of us—if we try.

An Astronomer Talks

On Flying Saucers

Dr. Otto Struve, distinguished astronomer of the University of California, spoke recently at the Western Amateur Astronomers Convention. He talked at length on the question of whether flying saucers are space ships from another world.

Dr. Struve said he has combed the universe for evidence of intelligent beings. He finds that of all the places in the solar system, only the earth can support intelligent life. The green areas on Mars may be lichen and mosses, but they are not chlorophyll-producing vegetation. In addition, he says that there is not enough water on Mars to support human life.

Venus is wrapped up in suffocating carbon dioxide, and has no free oxygen or water. The temperature on Mercury is so hot that lead would melt. Life on other planets in the solar system is ruled out because they have atmosphere of ammonia and methane.

After doing away with the prospect of life in our solar system, Dr. Struve considers the millions and millions of stars in the Milky Way. He concedes that there might be a thousand inhabitable worlds floating around those suns, but he points out that the distance to these hypothetical worlds is 50,000 light-years.

If a flying saucer left a Milky Way world and travelled to this earth at the speed of light, 186,000 miles each second, it would take 100,000 years for the round trip. To put it mildly, Dr. Struve has found no evidence to support the theory that flying saucers are space ships from another world.

Meeting With Favour

When the Provincial Government first announced plans for the County System of local government we recorded in these columns our favour of the plan. We pointed out that it was only reasonable that the same governing body that had to find the money should have the say in how it should be spent. Continual friction, in fact, between some School Division Boards and some Municipal District Councils has made the County system almost necessary.

There have been a large number of School Boards opposing the system, even though the trial basis features upon which it has so far been introduced have been very fair. Now at least one school division, Camrose, has taken the initiative to request the establishment of a county.

It is known, too, that several other applications for the establishment of a county lie on the Minister's desk or in his brief case. So, it may be that within a year or two Alberta will be a patchwork of counties instead of a conglomeration of municipal, school and hospital board boundary lines.

While the county will do away with the confusion of municipal boundaries overstepping school division boundaries and vice-versa, the desires and wishes of smaller districts should be heeded to avoid inclusion of "minority" areas in districts not to their liking. Some of our counties have as much area as sovereign states in other parts of the world and when the local government areas are so big as that they tend to work against the principles of purely "local" government.

It is pretty hard for a farmer living 50 or 100 miles away from the municipal centre to attend a council meeting or even an annual ratepayers' meeting. However, in municipal districts where the Municipal paper plan is in operation each resident ratepayer knows what is going on because he can read for himself the reports of meetings, and other news concerning the local municipal government.

Where Does the Water Do More Good?

(From the Calgary Albertan)

An interesting discussion on the value of sloughs on prairie farms have developed between Camrose Canadian and the Stettler Independent.

The Camrose weekly reports, obviously with approval, the efforts of some district farmers in emptying their sloughs. These farmers, at little cost and in little time, pumped the water out of their sloughs on to high land. This not only made the high land more productive, through having added moisture, but it also made it possible to grow crops in the slough-bottoms.

But the Stettler paper disapproves of the project. It recalls that a good slough is—or used to be—an asset on any farm, and that the drying up of sloughs is a factor in creating "dust bowls." It notes that in both Canada (through the P.F.R.A.) and the United States, government efforts are directed at making more water reservoirs on the prairies, not fewer.

Off-hand, we would side with Camrose Canadian. The drying up of sloughs would seem to be an effect, not a cause, of dust-bowl conditions. In mixed farming districts any natural watering-place is valuable, but on a grain farm a slough in itself has little value. The water in that slough came from run-off from the high land, and it would seem to be sensible to put the water back on the high land. Where there is good crop growth there will be little soil erosion, and irrigating with slough water will contribute to that good crop growth.

But it is a controversial subject, one on which expert advice would be welcome.

Virtue of the People

VIRTUES OF FREE ENTERPRISE

Britain's serious economic and financial difficulties are continually in the news. After seven years of policies of Socialism and Government Planning (called "The Welfare State") by the recent Labor-Socialistic Government, Britain is even worse off than she was some years ago.

She is still importing more than she exports, still spending more than her income, and so her financial reserves are diminishing month by month. Britain, therefore, has to be aided by generous gifts from other countries, mainly from the United States, in order that she may feed, clothe and shelter her people and so that she can build up her armaments against threatening aggression.

For seven years Britain adopted Socialist Planning as a cure for all her ills, and to eliminate the effects—so it was claimed—of the system of Competition and Free Enterprise. It is interesting to note, however, that Britain now has to be aided by the accumulated wealth of the United States. This wealth for long years past has been created by that country's belief in that freedom which promotes individual enterprise, initiative, and the right to savings. All of which is usually known as Free Enterprise. Surely there is a lesson here for those who are inclined towards Socialistic practices as a cure for economic and financial troubles.

Work Should Yield More Than Money

(From Papyrus)

"A great many people believe that work is what you do to earn enough so that you can have fun during the time when you don't have to work," sums up Dr. R. O. Jones, professor of psychiatry, Dalhousie University.

"This is a poor and curious philosophy, and it would be an important social change to make some general modification in this attitude by trying to teach our young people that work has some worth for itself and should be a source of satisfaction and of support to our mental health."

Dr. Jones points out that this is all the more so today, when homes are no longer close-knit family groups of people who do things together and give each other mutual support.

Work, he writes in the "Health League of Canada" magazine, should yield economic security, some measure of satisfaction from creative activity, and social contacts. And Dr. Jones finds that business and industry are attempting to meet these human needs in some degree. Furthermore he cites actual cases where study has shown that where these needs have been met successfully, absenteeism has been substantially reduced and production has increased.

He does not think for a minute that vocational guidance has all the answers; but does believe that a careful selection of workers and a fitting of individuals to jobs according to their temperament and ability is an important starting point.

"The worker who isn't properly placed in a job is almost bound to be discontented and dissatisfied," comments Dr. Jones. "Discontent and dissatisfaction are just about as contagious as the measles, and only a very few workers feeling this way may infect all the rest of the plant."

Another recommendation is for the provision of consultation facilities for workers who are dissatisfied. A worker with any health problem, either mental or physical, should be encouraged to discuss his case with a doctor.

REAR DRAFT

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

Regarding the article you copied from the Edmonton Journal about Mr. Maynard's "slim" victory in the provincial election in St. Albert constituency:

Apparently it is hard for some people to forget the 1952 elections and these same people are also intent on having others share their feelings. It is their own nightmare. As regards the results of this election and the next, however, I don't know what "Mr. Maynard must be wondering" but we, his supporters, feel very optimistic. We won with very little effort indeed.

Let the Liberals keep up their campaign of propaganda as they do in this recent campaign. They are not all dumb and they will soon realize. In their constituency, their campaign was shameful. On the other hand, if they try to be fair they will have very little to say for themselves. So really, I don't wonder what "Mr. Maynard is wondering." We can never hope to get another as good as him. So why not let the opposition do the wondering?

I may truly say that we went about this campaign rather casually and that we were taken by surprise. As for the Liberals, they played their last trump and lost. Nor can they say like the French king: "Everything is lost but the honor," because the Liberals lost everything, period. It would be better to try to forget the whole thing. Those old parades are decadent and a throw of the past, as someone in British Columbia said after the elections there.

Scriptural Meditations

By AINSLEY BLAKE

"Everything in nature, from the mote in the sunbeam, is under law. And upon obedience to these laws the order and harmony of the natural world depend. So there are great principles of righteousness and justice, the law of all intelligent beings, and upon conformity to these principles the well-being of the universe depends. Before this world was called into being, God's law existed. Angels are governed by its principles, and in order for earth to be in harmony with heaven, man also must obey the divine statutes. To man in Eden Christ made known the precepts of the law 'when the tree of knowledge of good and evil, the same of God shewed to me.' Job 38:7. The mission of Christ on earth was not to destroy the law, but by His grace to bring man back to obedience to its precepts."

LETTERS TO LOUISA

Dear Louisa:

We have three girls, all of a very hospitable nature. They think nothing of bringing in guests for meals every day.

Now I realize that it is nice for them to be sociable and popular but the house has its disadvantages. To begin with if I have enough meat for five, the dish seems rather skimpy for six. As I never know when the extra guest or guests are to appear, the only solution seems to always be prepared for at least six or more at every meal.

However, the real drawback to this remedy is that my budget is based on food for five instead of a larger number of people—with an allowance for guests, occasionally.

My real trouble is in getting the family to discuss the matter at all. If I mention it, my husband thinks I am campaigning for more money and the children think I begrudge their friends a little bread and meat.

As a matter of fact, I think we spend quite enough for food and I want not more money—all I want is a little friendly cooperation.

In by-gone days, when people had large families, entertained relatives by the month and had servants, one or two extra people made no difference but today the situation is different.

Do you think it would be a good idea to call the family together and try to discuss the matter or would you consider it a worthless effort?

MOTHER.

Answer:

You say you have difficulty in getting them to discuss the matter so it seems to me that this is your real problem.

You might have more success if you begin your discussion by saying that you do not want more money and you do not object to guests. Then put your figures on the table and show how it will feed five every day and eight occasionally but not eight every day. Try to make them understand that being prepared for extra people is just about as expensive as having ing them there. And then suggest that they each choose a day of the week on which they will feel up to invite a guest—as a regular thing.

Of course, occasions will come up when other people will come to be entertained but this solution of your problem seems to me rather fair to everyone. On the days you are not expecting extra people, you can make ends meet.

If you cannot understand why we wish to do certain things, they are usually quite reasonable and the real job is in getting them to understand the whys and the whereabouts.

You speak as though your children bring in these extra people without warning—if so, I fear you have been very lax in your training. Children should certainly have been taught to be more considerate than that. It is rather late to teach them now, but I wish you luck.

LOUISA.

Sterling Restrictions Holding Back Capital

EDMONTON—Only sterling restrictions are holding back a great influx of British capital into Alberta, according to Ralph R. Moore, federal deputy minister of economic affairs.

Mr. Moore made the comment on his return from a 2,500 mile, ten-week tour of the United Kingdom. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moore.

"If it were not for the sterling restrictions, there would be a large movement of British capital to Canada and particularly to Alberta," Mr. Moore said.

ECKVILLE

The village of Eckville, with a population of 376, is situated in a farming region some 30 miles west of Red Deer. It was named after A. E. T. Eckford, early settler of the area. The CPR station is sometimes called "Koo-koo."

The village itself is composed of seven garages, one hotel, six stores, four restaurants and four grain elevators.

For a brief history of the village, the first postmaster was J. H. Kellie, who operated the post office from his general store. The first school was built in 1908, and is now used as a church.

Henry Paepe Is President Of Egg Lake Coal Company Ltd.

MORINVILLE — It was announced here last week that a new company has been organized with a former partner, Henry Paepe elected president. The new Egg Lake Coal Company Limited, with Mr. Paepe at its head, replaces the former partnership of Thomas J. Logan and Henry Paepe.

Additional members of the new firm are Etienne Beke, who as understood he will take up residence in Edmonton.

The Egg Lake Coal Mine got its start in 1941, with partners Tom Logan and Henry Paepe digging their first coal with pick and shovel. It was the first strip mine in the district, and quickly adopted modern methods of producing quality coal at lowest cost. From an initial production of 300 tons the first season the mine has rapidly increased to over 50,000 tons in the 1951-52 season.

Mr. Paepe stated that the Egg Lake Coal Mine will be operated much the same as before. Known throughout the province for high quality coal, and good service, the Egg Lake Coal Mine Company Ltd. looks forward to serving its thousands of satisfied customers and no doubt many new ones.

Mr. Logan, who had made many friends in his connection with the coal mine, has sold his interests to members of the new firm. Tom's business plans for the future are not yet definite, but after a holiday trip to British Columbia it is

Government Inspections Coming Of District Potato Plots

W. Lobay, Supervisor of Crop Protection, Alberta Department of Agriculture, reports that around 6,500 acres in the potato growing areas of Edmonton, Calgary, Brooks and Lethbridge will be inspected this fall for signs of the highly contagious bacterial ring rot. This annual inspection is part of the work undertaken by the Department to ensure protection and improvement of the province's potato industry.

Although it is only fifteen years since bacterial ring rot made its appearance in Alberta, the highly contagious nature of the disease could have resulted in tremendous damage in that time if it had not been for the interest and vigilance of both growers and officials.

Inspections will be made first on fields for which planting permits were obtained this spring, and growers whose fields are found free from ring rot will be given a certificate to that effect.

If infection should be found the crop will be handled in such a way that danger of spread of the disease will be eliminated. For the protection of himself and the industry, any grower who failed to obtain a planting permit this spring should see the inspector within his area, and request that an inspection of his field be made. Inspections will start at the beginning of September and are expected to be completed by the end of the month.

 Every grower should be fam-* iliar with the symptoms of bacterial ring rot to help in the crusade to eliminate this disease. Diseased plants are usually detected only late in the growing season, and the first sign is rolling of the leaves. The leaves soon lose their color and become thin and smooth to the touch. One or more stems in a hill may wither while the remainder appear healthy.

When affected plants are dug, some of the tubers are usually badly diseased. All gradations from sound to decayed tubers will be found. The bacteria that enter the tubers, spread rapidly in the tissue just below the skin surface, causing in that region a creamy yellow, crumbly and cheesy rot. The amount of the tuber outside the area of rot can easily be separated from the inner part.

Suspected specimens should be mailed immediately to the Field Crops Branch, Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, for verification of the disease.
